Goal of this FarmHack

The hackathon is organized to mobilize local tech communities and startups, create space for innovative ideas and encourage their participation in the agri-food sector. It aims to build bridges between Austrian agri-food and technology communities and to break down the barriers for using technology. The hackathon also aims to inspire young farmers to get involved in the sector, familiarize them with new technological advances in the field and spark their own development ideas.

The following topics will be addressed during the hackathon:

- Digital toolbox for precision farming for under 1,000.00 euros.
- Digitalization in the of harvest of specialty crops
- Direct marketing via commodity exchanges and online platforms
- Transparent supply chains for restaurants and supermarkets

On the first day of the FarmHack, four different practical insights will be given as impulses for creativity. On the one hand, this is to show what is already possible through technology, and on the other hand, how a good idea coupled with digitalization can quickly become reality.

The 10-15 minute impulse presentations will be followed by the opportunity for participants to ask the speakers questions about their work and experiences. The following presentations are planned:

10-15 min Impuls: Wolfgang Schiessl - <https://www.viehworld.com/>
